Toronto, June 21.—The Empire today publishes the opinions of representative commercial men connected with boards of trade all over Canada regarding the appointment of Erasmus Wiman as a delegate from this country to the Imperial Chamber of Commerce gathering in London, and the result is a condemnation of the appointment from every quarter. The refusal of the Toronto board of Trade to accept Wiman as a representative is approved. Wiman is denounced as an enemy of Canada, and declared unfit to represent her interests.

EDWARD BLAKE AND THE IRISH PARTY.

We announced last week that the leaders of the Irish Parliamentary Party had sent a cablegram to the Hon. Edward Blake, requesting him to accept an Irish seat, in the British House of Commons.

The bona fides of the invitation is placed beyond peradventure, when we please to consider who are the parties extending it. A cablegram coming direct from the headquarters of the Irish Parliamentary party, with the names of Justin McCarthy, John Dillon, Michael Davitt, T. M. Healey and Wm. O'Brien attached thereto, speaks an unimpaired of choice, that must create astonishment and surprise in the minds of all who have made themselves familiar with Irish politics (if we may use the term) and the course pursued by leaders of the Irish Parliamentary party.

Between some of the senators to the invitation, it is well known that the greatest harmony, unity of thought or action has not always existed. Each member to a greater or less extent sought his own personal aggrandizement while advocating the rights of Ireland. Undoubtedly this very disagreement between the leaders of the party, coupled with a certain degree of jealousy between them, is the chief reason why, for once, there was concord, and why the necessity for united action, in choosing some outside party to lead the Irish cause to victory.

No better selection could have been made than the Hon. Edward Blake. Descended from an old Irish family, the honorable gentleman has ever taken the greatest interest in the struggle of the land of his forefathers for a limited grant of local self-government.

It has long been known that his aspirations were in the direction of securing a seat in the British House of Commons. He has now the opportunity of having his wishes gratified, and we are now in the receipt of the news that he has accepted the invitation. The Irish leaders have had the occasion, time and time again, of observing the forensic eloquence, the noble action and convincing oratory of this great legal luminary, in his arguments before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, in some of the most important colonial constitutional cases that have been adjudicated upon by that Committee.

Outside of the discussion relative to the Confederation of the provinces, and a few other important measures, the learned gentleman (it has always appeared to us) took little interest in the affairs of our Dominion Parliament. He seemed to us better fitted for the discussion of measures, involving some important principle, than the consideration of such minor matters as usual attract the attention of our Canadian legislators.

As a leader of the Irish party, assisting Mr. Gladstone in the British House, the Irish cause will receive the benefit of his services. Unhappily, however, the Irish cause, he will make its greatest forces, and enforce a unity of thought and action among its chief supporters that has not been attained since the death of Parnell.

The personal sacrifices which must be made by the honorable gentleman in thus entering the ranks of the Irish party are great, and these concessions clearly prove how great must be the interest which he takes in the affairs of the land of his ancestors.

As he has deliberately decided never again to enter the Dominion House of Commons, owing to his disagreeing with the Liberal party, Canada will not suffer a loss by his departure. In fact, on the contrary, it will gain. No one will accuse Mr. Blake of being other than patriotic and zealous in his efforts to advance the interests of Canada. On the floor of the British House of Commons, when matters pertaining to Canada and Canadian interests are under discussion, it will be of inestimable benefit to our country, to have one of her sons there present, able to enlighten the members as to our requirements, to advocate our rights, or seek redress for our wrongs.

We hope the report that Mr. Blake has accepted the invitation may be true, not only in the interests of the Irish cause, but in the interests of our own country.

THE DANGERS OF HABITUAL HURRY.

"The common habit of being continually in a hurry," says a London ex-chance, "is a habit which keeps the nervous system at a perpetual tension, leads to excessive vital waste, undue susceptibility to disease, and, in extreme cases, to nervous exhaustion. Under its influence persons naturally amiable are transformed into petulant and noisy scolds."

The woman who is a wife and mother is peculiarly liable to this habit, she has so much to do and so little time in which to do it, in these days when so many outside things crowd upon her domestic duties. There is no doubt that hurry claims its victims where hard work kills one. The man of business suffers in much the same manner. The hurried breakfast and the hurried skimming of the morning paper are but the beginning of a hurried day. Yet it is unsafe for him to act in a hurry, or in the spirit generated by it. The uncertainties of his calling make entire self-control of prime importance.

School children are victims of the same evil. They must be at school exactly to time. But in thousands of cases the family arrangements are not such as to favor punctuality. The child is allowed to sit up late, and so is late at breakfast, or the breakfast itself is late, and the child must hurry through it, and then hurry off, half-dressed and fully fretted, dreading tardiness and the teacher's displeasure. Robust children may work off the effect amid the sports of the day, but many others suffer from the effects all their lives.

Occasional hurry is hardly to be avoided, society being what it is; but the habit of hurry should be guarded against as one of the surest promoters of ill-temper and ill health.

If necessary, less work should be done; but in many cases nothing is needed but a wiser economy of time. Some of the worst victims of hurry are men who dally with their work until time presses them, and they crowd themselves into a fever, pitting themselves meanwhile because they are so sadly driven.

THE HUDSON BAY R. R.

The Toronto Monetary Times has the following to say about the much talked of enterprise of the Hudson's Bay Railroad: "Once more the story comes from London that the capital to complete the railway from Winnipeg to Hudson's Bay has been found. Considering the number of false announcements to the same effect previously made, it is only reasonable to wait till certainty comes regarding this latest statement. It may be taken for granted that the Hudson Bay route will sooner or later be tried, and this will not be possible till there is a railway communication with this mis-named territory. The route will, at that time, be a reality, and a few years will tell its value. One success is assured, a second line of railway to Hudson Bay will not be long in coming; and when it does come it will connect Ontario, from Toronto, directly with this route. But we may well be content to let others enjoy the honors of the experiment. Of course the whole Dominion is interested in the scheme, and it has done its share by aiding the Manitoba enterprise. The Ontario enterprise, actually begun, would be justified as far as it goes, even if the Hudson Bay navigation, to which it may be compared, should ultimately fail; the route necessary, in any case, as a means of access to Northern Ontario."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It is rumored that Sir Hector Langevin will shortly be appointed Lieutenant Governor of Quebec.

At Fischhausen, in Germany a wedding feast of Homeric proportions recently took place. The 163 guests got through an ox, three pigs, four calves, eighteen chickens, ten geese, and ducks and pigeons in preparation. Four hogsheds of beer, forty quarts of rum, and fifty of other liquors served to wash down the solids.

The shade of Gargantua should rejoice at this noble feat.

The June number of Cornhill publishes an interview with Count Tolstoi, the great Russian author, philanthropist, and statesman. Tolstoi expressed his surprise that English public opinion did not accord Ruskin his proper place as one of the greatest men of the age in any country. Ruskin, he said, was, of course, a much greater man than Gladstone, "but no man is a prophet of his own country," he continued, "and the greatest men are seldom recognized in their own times for the very reason that they are so much in advance of the age."

CLONING AND INDIA, of London says: "Lord Aberdeen went to the Eastern Station on May 20th, to say Good-bye to a party of 52 immigrants who were just being sent off to Canada under the auspices of the Self Help Immigration Society. Lady Aberdeen accompanied the Earl, and both spoke a few cheering words of encouragement to the little band of adventurers who were about to try their fortune across the seas. Lord and Lady Aberdeen are to be greatly commended by their philanthropic zeal in this particular direction. They are doing great work, and doing it nobly."

There are very strong reasons for believing that the M. & N. W. Railway will be extended to Prince Albert this season. The Dominion Government is considering the advisability of placing this road on a similar subsidy basis as the Qu'Appelle, Long Lake & Saskatchewan railway. Urgent requests have been sent to the minister of railways, by the people along the route. They are being assisted in every way by Mr. McDowell, M. P. P. and other western members. If the Government accede it is understood that the Ross-MacKenzie company will at once begin construction, probably at both ends of the work. Prince Albert, though thankful for its branch, the C. P. R., is naturally jubilant at the prospect for another railway and the realization of long deferred hope.

Waghorn's Guide for June is even more than usually instructive. In view of the coming elections a map is given showing the new Electoral Divisions in Manitoba, which has attracted considerable attention in certain quarters. The usual return of new Post Offices opened in the North West and Mail Stage service connections are given, also the Atlantic and Pacific Steamship Sailing-rates and passage accommodation by the chief Steamship lines. The Lake Sailings of the C. P. R. and the Beatty Sarnia Lines are likewise shown and the new service by rail and boat to and from it velvete to Nelson, a district which is undergoing considerable development and receiving much favorable notice. The general business tables and almanac information embody all changes and addition to date, and the time cards of the various lines are clearly given with fares distances and express rates. A convenient index to advertisers is added to the general index of contents.

Unhappy Russia seems doomed. Recent official reports as to the harvest prospects show that the general outlook is much worse than it was in the early summer of 1891. Locusts have destroyed the crops in the Caucasus, in which districts the stores of grain saved the situation last autumn. It is impossible to hope for much from Southern Russia, where the crops have been ravaged by worms and by the field marmot. The position is made worse by the fact that at the beginning of the last famine a stock of grain was in store, while now there is none.

The stone city—Calgary, the capital of Alberta, and its tributary district is fully and graphically described and beautifully illustrated in the June number of The Western World. The views comprise some of the principal buildings, residences, streets, &c., and a number of ranch and farm scenes, which give a vivid idea of the character of Central Alberta. The engravings are well executed, and well maintain the high standard of the publication. Mr. Molyneux St. John contributes an interesting article, "Through Woodranch to Fairy Land—illustrative of the journey from New York and Montreal to Japan and China via Winnipeg. As usual, the issue contains a large amount of matter dealing with the resources and development of Manitoba, the Northwest Territories, British Columbia and Northwest Ontario, and all the current information in regard to immigration, railway constructions, &c. The number is an exceedingly interesting one in every way, and should be read by every one who wants to know what the resources of this country are and what advance it is making.

The total number of cattle, horses and sheep in the Districts of Alberta and Assiniboia as reported by lessees of ranches and computed from information derived by Department of the Interior from other sources, is as follows:—

|-------------|---------|
| Cattle..... | 121,116 |
| Horses..... | 15,463 |
| Sheep..... | 61,191 |

The Department of Agriculture, however, reports that according to the general census of 1891 the number of heads of stock in the said districts is:—

| | |
|-------------|---------|
| Cattle..... | 215,078 |
| Horses..... | 55,419 |
| Sheep..... | 60,133 |

The same report shows that the number of heads of stock in the District of Saskatchewan is as follows:—

| | |
|-------------|--------|
| Cattle..... | 16,141 |
| Horses..... | 5,220 |
| Sheep..... | 4,487 |

The Department, of course, has no machinery for ascertaining annually the facts in relation to animals upon homesteads and privately owned lands, and the information obtained has relation chiefly to the lands held under lease from the Government for grazing purposes.

The manager, the bookkeeper, the salesman, the office boy, everyone in fact, who is in any way connected with a business establishment should bear in mind that there is such a thing as cultivating trade, and that they, as well as the proprietors, are responsible for a share of the firm's success. Because a man is hired to fill a certain position there should be no excuse for his hesitating to do any other work which may require attention. A bookkeeper might soil his fingers by stepping outside the office and waiting upon a customer if occasion required, but he would not lower himself in the estimation of his employer through thus signifying a willingness to make himself generally useful, and anyway the dirt will wash off. To make a business grow and make it pay should be the main object of every employee regardless of position or conditions. The day is gone when business can be conducted successfully without the undivided and best efforts of those who are responsible for it. In days gone by a merchant might succeed in a measure by sitting down and waiting for trade to come to him, but not now. In our day and generation the most persistent and systematic efforts are essential to bringing about a satisfactory result. A progressive spirit and a capacity for pleasing customers will work wonders in any business.

As will be seen by reference to our advertising columns, we have made arrangements by which we are enabled to offer the Nor-West Farmer together with our own paper for $2.00 a year, which is 50 cents less than the price of the two papers separately. The Nor-West Farmer is so well known as a practical paper entirely devoted to this region that we have no doubt a large number of our subscribers will avail themselves to this offer. There are several excellent agricultural papers in Canada, but The Nor-West Farmer is really the only one thoroughly suitable for circulation here, the whole of its matter being specially written for the Northwest. It is still the only farming paper printed west of Lake Superior, and has among its writers many of the most successful prairie farmers and ranchers, besides a number of specialists in the various departments.

A copy of the June number of The Manitoban, Winnipeg's new magazine, has reached us in an enlarged form and presents a neat appearance. Among the interesting articles which go to make up this excellent magazine are:

"The Dawson Route Military Expedition," by a private of the force, who recounts in a capital way the times "the boys" had in making their overland journey to Fort Garry; "The Esquimaux of the East Coast of Hudson's Bay," by Walter Dickson, is continued in which the writer truthfully describes in an interesting manner the manners and customs of these children of the north; "The Red River Expedition" is also continued, and is as full of interest as ever, while "Beatrice Cameron" and "The Shadow of a Wrong," two thrilling stories by local writers, are continued; a complete story, "Only Friends," by Dixie, a well-known Brandon writer, is intensely interesting as well, and, for so young an author, is a creditable production. The editor tells about "Marriage in Upper Canada 100 years ago" and in an article entitled "Our Canadian Relationship" shows up an American writer who would frame a policy for American interests. This, with the notes and comments on timely topics, literary notes and reviews, publishers notes, poetry, the checker department, and several illustrations, make up a capital number. All who are interested in the Canadian Northwest should possess a copy of this magazine.

Cheap Reading for Farmers.

We have made arrangements by which we are enabled to offer THE NOR-WEST FARMER in conjunction with our own paper at a greatly reduced rate. THE NOR-WEST FARMER, which was established in 1882, is still the only agricultural paper printed between Lake Superior and the Pacific Coast, having in that vast territory a much larger circulation than all other agricultural publications combined.

It is an illustrated paper, devoted to Live Stock, Dairying, Veterinary, Grain Growing, Poultry, Forestry, Gardening and every other detail of Northwest Farming, written by practical, experienced men of long residence here, and is specially adapted to the conditions of this region, to the farming of which it is the only paper in Canada exclusively devoted. Complete and accurate market reports are among its special features.

It is a journal that should be read by every man cultivating an acre of land, or owning a domestic animal in Manitoba or the Northwest Territories. As its name implies, it is edited especially to meet the requirements of the Great Fertile Belt of the Northwest. It is alike valuable to the Farmer, Rancher, Dairyman or Gardener.

The MOOSE JAW TIMES (subscription $1.50 a year) and THE NOR-WEST FARMER (subscription $1 a year) will be sent to any address, for one year, on receipt of $2.00, a saving of 50 cts., being thus effected on the price of two papers.
